

Ben Golding

Chief Operating Officer

Ben consults with many of the nation's leading healthcare organizations, academic institutions and non-profit organizations on donor-centric development practices that drive transformational philanthropy.

Among his institutional clients are the University of Washington, Sutter Health, United Way Worldwide, Oregon State University, MedStar Health, California State University System, Northwestern University, and University of British Columbia.

Ben has been honored to introduce Advancement Resources' breakthrough concepts at a number of national associations and healthcare systems, including Association of Healthcare Philanthropy, Minnesota Planned Giving Association, Northwest Development Officers Association, Adventist Health Systems, and CHRISTUS Health Network.

Ben also serves as managing partner at Mindseye Project Partners. Mindseye provides donor engagement services for healthcare and academic institutions, with primary focus on inspiring philanthropy through the power of personal stories. Mindseye's interview and video production teams capture and produce donor stories, vision stories, and impact stories that are shared through numerous channels, including recognition events, donor walls, social media, and other avenues.